

What is Product Recall Coverage?

Recall Insurance covers the cost to return a defective product or food item to the manufacturer and defend the client's reputation. Standalone Liability policies excluded this critical supply-chain exposure.

WHY BUY PRODUCT RECALL INSURANCE

Product recalls can strike anywhere. In a recent event originating in the fields of Yuma, Arizona, at least five have died and over 200 more were sickened from eating E-Coli-tainted romaine lettuce. Same brands never recover from a single event let alone an event of this magnitude. Farm-to-table produce increases the points of possible contamination. New technologies make tracking supply-chain touch points much easier, putting more suppliers in that chain at risk of liability claims. Higher consumer awareness will continue to increase recall risks.

THE COST OF PRODUCT RECALLS CONTINUE TO RISE:

Whether in food or in manufacturing, recalls are increasing in the US and abroad. Since 2002, food recalls have almost doubled. Contaminated Product coverage helps manufacturers, wholesalers, retailers and food, beverage and ingestible product distributors managing growing threats to their products, brand reputations and financial futures.

When a product recall looms, your client must trace, locate, recall and destroy the product, and then restock. Reputational risk can permanently damage a brand. Supply chains are more complex, and recalls can be challenging and costly. Help your clients recover quickly with Product Recall Insurance.
